FINAL TEST OF PUBLIC SPIRIT OF ALBUQUERQUE TO COME TODAY

"Finish and Furnish" Campaign Will End at Midnight, by Which Time More Than $8,000 Must Be Raised.

LUNCH AND DINNER TO BE SERVED WORKERS

Teams Will Devote Every Hour of the Day in Supreme Effort to Reach the Goal Before Clock Strikes Twelve.

By midnight tonight it will be known definitely whether Albuquerque has for the first time in her career as a city, fallen down in a pinch in a great public undertaking. The supreme test of the loyalty and public spirit of her citizens is at hand.

The little band of loyal workers who started out last Wednesday to raise $8,000 for the purpose of furnishing and furnishing the Y. M. C. A. building are nearing the end of their labors. At midnight tonight the campaign which they have been waging will come to an end. Before that time comes they must turn in subscriptions amounting to $8,232, or slightly more than half the entire sum which they set out to raise.

The task seems almost impossible, but they are still firm in their faith that it will be accomplished. They are gambling on the Albuquerque spirit. They will not believe that the men and women who, a year and a half ago, declared themselves for a Y. M. C. A. building and raised over $60,000 with the fruit of their labor and time and money wasted.

Final Drive Today. Today will see the final drive in the campaign. Every worker will be on the streets this morning by 8 o'clock and will keep on until midnight, or until the goal of the campaign has been reached. Those who have worked hard during the last five days will work just a little harder today. Every nerve will be strained, every muscle extended, and the men in charge of the campaign are still serene in the confidence that this evening will see them with victory perched on their banners.

So far there have been no big subscriptions to the fund. The $8,232 that comprised the grand total reported at the noon luncheon yesterday represents, for the most part, the dollar and ten dollar subscriptions of the average man—the man on the street—the man who gives just a little bit bigger sum in proportion to his means than anybody else when the good of the community is at stake. There have been a few subscriptions for as much as $100, but these have been the exception rather than the rule.

Luncheon will be served again at noon today, as usual, and at 5:30 o'clock this evening dinner will be served. If the entire amount of the fund has not been raised at that time the work will keep right ahead until the campaign will be declared, for better or for worse, formally and officially at an end.

Meeting Yesterday. There was no abatement of the enthusiasm that has prevailed throughout the campaign at the noonday luncheon in the gymnasium hall yesterday. An address by Dr. D. R. Boyd, president of the University of New Mexico, and one by Judge R. P. Barnes, formerly of Silver City but now of Albuquerque, were heard with applause by the workers and served to arouse a high degree of enthusiasm.

A total of $1,765.35 in subscriptions was reported for Saturday and Sunday. Among these subscriptions was the furnishing of a bedroom, donated by the Bernalillo County Bar association, reported by Captain Pearce C. Rodey, and the furnishing of two bedrooms voluntarily donated by a lady whose name was withheld from publication at her request.

It was announced that the Indian school band will again parade the streets both at noon and evening today and will furnish music for the luncheon and the dinner. After the dinner the building will be brilliantly lighted and the general public is cordially invited to attend and see the final wind-up of one of the most notable campaigns ever conducted in Albuquerque.

Additional Subscribers. Secretary Bennett yesterday gave out the following list of names of subscribers secured since the publication of the list in the Journal of Monday:

AMERICA ONLY TO FIGHT FOR HUMAN RIGHTS

President Wilson, Addressing D. A. R., Declares People of Country Must Be True to Tradition of Fathers.

(BY MORNING JOURNAL SPECIAL LEADERS WIRE) Washington, April 17.—In an address welcoming the Daughters of the American Revolution, gathered here today for their annual congress, President Wilson declared that the only excuse America ever can have for the assertion of her physical force, is that she asserts it in behalf of humanity. He was speaking of the purpose of the republic—born to serve the rest of the world, just as much as itself—and had just said that the nation will have forgotten its traditions whenever she fights merely for herself under such circumstances as will show that she has forgotten to fight for all mankind.

The president was enthusiastically applauded. When he was introduced by Mrs. William Cummings, Story, president-general of the organization, the audience stood and cheered, and many of the women waved American flags.

President Wilson said: "What the Organization Means. I have told you upon more than one occasion of the sentiments which are chiefly stirred in me by looking upon a company like this. I was thinking today that if this organization were entirely contrary to the spirit of American institutions, it would have been looked upon with a good deal of disfavor, because you would then have been suspected of getting up some sort of aristocratic class. It would have been thought that you were acting in a spirit contrary to the democratic spirit professed by the founders of the republic itself.

Purely Patriotic. "You will remember that that sort of criticism was stirred by the foundation of the Society of the Cincinnati. It was supposed that they were setting up an organization, which because its membership which was handed on by promiscuity, was an organization entirely contrary to the spirit of American institutions. But a very interesting thing has happened. The proportion of those who can derive their lineage from officers who took part in the American revolution is a constantly decreasing proportion. You cannot be suspected of trying to build up an organization, which will control the country. On the contrary, the spirit in which you have formed this organization was from the first, manifest. It was not a spirit of caste or of privilege, but a spirit of reverence for a great tradition, and for my part I believe that the chief service of a great organization like this is to keep a certain beautiful sentiment warm and vital in the consciousness of the American people.

Live Up to Traditions. "Tradition is a handsome thing in proportion as we live up to it. If we fall away from the tradition of the fathers, we have dishonored them. If we forget the tradition of the fathers, we have changed our character; we have lost an old impulse; we have become unconscious of the principles in which the life of the nation itself is rooted and grounded. Therefore, this organization undertook to keep those who fell under its influence constantly reminded of the circumstances of the birth of the nation and of the significance of the birth of this nation. That significance was a very singular significance. No other nation was ever born into the world with the purpose of serving the rest of the world just as much as it served itself.

Must Not Fight for Self. "The purpose of this nation was in one sense to afford an asylum to men of all classes and kind who desired to be free and to take part in the administration of a self-governed commonwealth. It was founded in order that men of every sort should have proof given that a commonwealth of that sort was practicable, not only, but could win its standing of distinction and power among the nations of the world, and America will have forgotten her traditions whenever upon any occasion, she fights merely for herself under such circumstances as will show that she has forgotten to fight for all mankind. And the only excuse that America can ever have for the assertion of her physical force is that she asserts it in behalf of the interest of humanity.

Must Be Unselfish. "When America ceases to be unselfish, she will cease to be American. When she forgets the traditions of devotion to human rights in general, which gave spirit and impulse to her founders, she will have lost her title deeds to her own nationality.

Antoinette Donnelly's Talks to Women on Beauty Topics

The Blushing Habit.

BEAUTIFUL blushing suffused her cheeks and made her more radiantly lovely than ever. "so the heroines are written of in story books. But in real life blushing aren't such radiantly lovely possessions to the owner. They are most comforting, to say the least. In a novel the heroine is made to blush at the right time only and to the right extent. She never goes through the tortures of the disfiguring blush which, not content with giving a rosy flush to the cheeks, mounts yet higher until the forehead is a scarlet expanse and even the back of the neck is a vivid crimson.

Shyness is generally the cause of this distressing habit. And often there is a genuine charm in this shyness, for the pretty color that comes and goes in a young girl's face is an attraction. But the thing that irritates the blusher is "blushing when she would give the whole world not to."

You can prevent it to a great extent. If you look at the cause of the complaint your argument must run somewhat like this: "I blush because I'm shy. It is nervousness that makes me shy. Then, if I could find out why I'm nervous when there's nothing to be frightened about I might cure myself. If I'm nervous, then my nerves are not under proper control. Why?"

There is the root of the whole matter. When your nerves are weak your blood is poor because the blood feeds the nerves. There may be all sorts of reasons for this poverty of blood—want of good fresh air, too much confinement, not enough exercise, and so on.

So set to work to make your blood richer. If possible, take a cold plunge every morning, followed by a brisk rubdown. Go for a daily walk. Take plenty of outdoor exercise and learn some healthy game, such as golf or tennis. Then try to forget about yourself and your ailments. The more you think of yourself and your ailments the more self-conscious you will become and the more blushing you will do.

Antoinette Donnelly's Answers.

MRS. P.: Affection from granular lids is contagious. do not use the towel or soap of the person so afflicted. The trouble you are having with your eyes may not come from this cause. It is probably from real eye trouble. Give up reading for about a week and rest your eyes and bathe them night and morning with a solution of ten grains of boric acid to an ounce of water. Use an eye-cup.

ROSE: Unless the space between your teeth is large I do not believe it would be worth while to suffer the discomfort and pain of having anything done to them. There isn't a question in my mind but what it can be done, but it might take six months or more. If I were you I would consult a dentist about it. I am sorry, but I am against the rules of this department to give names and addresses.

WINNIE: You might ruin it if you undertook to dye your switch yourself, unless, of course, you understand thoroughly how to do it, which I judge from your letter you are not. I suggest your taking it to a good hairdresser, where you can have it done at a comparatively small cost. I shall be glad to send you my instructions for scalp massage if you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope.

HENRY: It may take some little time but I am sure if you are persevering you will be able to remove the scars left from squeezing out blackheads, by massaging your face each night with a good skin food. Leave some on the face over night to become absorbed by the skin. The following is an excellent skin food: One ounce of white wax, one ounce of spermaceti, two ounces of lanolin, two ounces of coconut oil, four ounces of oil of sweet almonds, four ounces of oil of rose water, and a quarter ounce of boric acid. Melt all the oils and wax in a double boiler, remove from the fire and beat until cold, adding slowly and gradually the orange flower water in which the boric acid has been dissolved; lastly pour in five drops of benzoin. Be sure that the ingredients are fresh and of the best quality.

DOUBTFUL: A daily bath of some kind is absolutely necessary for good health. You are the only one who knows whether you are physically fit to take a cold plunge. If your system is run down, your heart action weak, or if you are suffering from chronic indigestion, a cold plunge is likely to tax your strength away beyond hope of any compensating reaction. If you feel chilly or languid, or if your finger tips become blue after a cold bath, it would be much better for you to take a tepid bath.
